FOOD CHECK OUT DAY CELEBRATED MARCH 2, 2016

Food Check-Out week is celebrated annually by Kentucky Farm Bureau. This is the week each year that Americans have earned enough money to pay for their food for the entire year. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Economic Research Service, American consumers spend, on average, just over 10 percent of their disposable income for food. That means the average household will have earned enough disposable income—that portion of income available for spending or saving – to pay for its annual food supply in about seven weeks, said Kentucky Farm Bureau President Mark Haney. That is only about 49 days, however, Americans must work approximately 99 days to earn enough money to pay federal taxes according to the Tax Foundation.

“America’s food supply is the most affordable as well as the safest in the world,” Haney said. “Domestic foods that are produced by farmers in Kentucky and throughout the United States are responsible, in part, for our nation’s increased standard of living.”

In recognition of this, Jackson County Farm Bureau celebrated Food Check-Out Day by asking customers to come by the office to pick up more information on Food Check-Out and enter a drawing for a gift certificate to a local grocery store. The winner of the gift certificate was Debra Adkins from McKee.

Agricultural Facts

- The agriculture and food industries employ approximately 24 million people nationwide.
- U.S. agricultural exports generate more than $100 billion in business activity annually.
- Almost 90 percent of U.S. farms are operated by families or individuals.
- Today’s farmer – using less land, water and energy than previous generations – grows enough food and fiber to feed 154 people.
- When applied to calendar days, the average American earns enough income to pay for his entire year’s supply of food in just seven weeks. By comparison, the same person must work until mid-April to pay for annual taxes. That’s seven weeks for food and more than three months for taxes.
- According to Kentucky Farm Bureau’s Marketbasket Survey data, the average retail food price of 40 basic grocery items in Kentucky has increased less than $45 over the last 20 years.

National Agriculture Week

National Agriculture Week was the week of March 13-19, 2016. National Ag Week and Kentucky Ag Literacy Day is celebrated each year to help students understand that agriculture provides for our most basic needs and enriches our life economically, environmentally and socially. Farm Bureau volunteers are encouraged to visit elementary school classrooms across the state and read an ag-related book and talk to the students about the importance of agriculture.

This year Brenda Ayers and Phyllis Purvis visited Tyner Elementary school and read the ag-book, "First Peas to the Table," to a group of 4th grade students.

FARM SAFETY IN KENTUCKY

Recent statistics show that FARMING is one of the most dangerous occupations in the United States. Agriculture has the highest rate of occupational fatalities of any industry more than five times the annual rate for all other workers.

The death rate in Kentucky agriculture is two to three times higher than the national average, primarily because of our high number of tractors and tractor overturn deaths.

Listed below are some general safety guidelines which can help to reduce the risk of tractor accidents on your farm.

All new operators should receive instructions on safe operation of each tractor and be made aware of potentially hazardous situations.

New operators, especially youth, should be closely supervised until they have demonstrated their skill and knowledge of safe tractor operation.

- Before youth are allowed to operate a tractor, they should:
1. Be able to reach all controls comfortably from the operators seat.
 2. Have maturity and judgment to recognize and anticipate potential hazards.
 3. Have received instruction and training in operation and safety.

Read and follow the procedures outlined in the operator’s manual and only use the tractor for its intended use. Make a NO RIDERS policy on all tractors.

Never attempt to mount or dismount a moving tractor.

Keep others clear of the area during operation

Make sure that all PTO equipment is properly shielded.

By being aware and following a few safety rules we hope that your experience with your tractor will be a safe one.

KENTUCKY FARM BUREAU CONRESSIONAL TOUR

The 2016 Congressional Tour was February 20-24. This year’s tour was a big success with more than 250 KFB members from nearly 60 different counties sitting down with members of congress to discuss the 2016 national priority issues. Jackson County was represented by women’s committee members Malta Sue Madden and Brenda Ayers.

Joe Cain, KFB’s Commodity Division director, stated, “Our Congressional Tour not only provides KFB members with a deeper understanding of the inner workings of Washington, it also allows them to share their concerns about how the decisions and policies made in D.C. impact agriculture and rural life back home.”

Senators McConnell and Paul met with the group for a question and answer session and a lengthy discussion of their work and efforts in Washington.
